

Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 27 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Central and south cloudy, mostly dry. Sunshine, showers in north.

Today:

From Central Belt southwards rather cloudy with a few isolated early light showers but most staying dry. In north sunshine and wintry showers, these mainly focused across Shetland, and to a lesser extent Orkney and the Northeast mainland.

Tonight:

Wintry showers largely confined to Shetland from late evening as rain, snow reaches southwest. This extends into Central Belt overnight. Heavier outbreaks and strengthening winds reaching far southwest towards dawn.

Thursday:

Sunshine, wintry showers for Shetland. Elsewhere cloudy with occasional rain and snow, with outbreaks mostly light. Easterly winds occasionally strong in west.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:

Cloud rain, summit snow early Friday clearing as sunshine and limited showers follow from the north. Saturday mainly dry, bright with light winds. Snow then rain spreading from west Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.